A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT & CEO

This Spring brought an unusually early arrival of warm weather and the corresponding return of migratory waterfowl to our Region. It's the time for Spring hunting of waterfowl, seals and other marine mammals, and king crab harvesting! Because of warmer weather, the formation and thickness of sea ice decreased this past winter and limited access to traditional marine hunting grounds. Despite these challenges, our hunters, both young and old, traveled out from our villages to replenish subsistence food supplies with fresh seal, walrus and oogruk, all kinds of migrating birds and their eggs, and fresh crab. Our villages are busy with Spring harvesting activities!

It has been great seeing photos of our shareholders and descendants showing their successful hunting and harvesting efforts. What is even more gratifying is seeing that our tradition of sharing with Elders, the infirm and others is still as important now as it was hundreds of years ago. Our youth have demonstrated a strong allegiance to this tradition, ensuring that our traditions will survive and continue to be an important part of who we are as Alaska Native people. We are a living culture, and while changes in our environment and lifestyles have occurred, our traditions are what bind us to our past and ensure that our way of life will continue to thrive and survive through our descendants.

Some of our villages are continuing to experience serious impacts from warmer winter weather, which has delayed the formation of shorefast sea ice. In years past when the shorefast ice formed, usually beginning sometime in October, it protected our shorelines from the typical winter storms that occurred starting in November. Now, coastal communities bear the full brunt of these storms, which have increased in frequency and intensity, because of the lack of shorefast ice to protect the shoreline. I was surprised when I visited Unalakleet with Senator Murkowski in November and saw that the Norton Sound was full of white caps, and there was no ice formation on the beach. We have and will continue to advocate for funds for our villages, including Shaktoolik and Shishmaref, as they explore options to protect their homes and villages.

The BSNC Board and staff recently held a shareholder informational meeting in the Seattle area, which was attended by about 200 shareholders, guests and descendants. Staff provided an update on BSNC operations and finances, including reports from me, Chief Financial Officer Laura Edmondson, and Vice President of Lands and Resources Larry Pederson. We were happy to meet with our shareholders and descendants who live in the greater Seattle area, and share some of our traditional foods with several lucky door prize winners. We again had an Inupiat dance group, led by Thomas Octuck, perform for us. And, as before, we had two shareholders who were over ninety years old who attended the meeting.

As May is graduation month, I would like to extend sincere congratulations to our shareholders and descendants who are graduating from high school, college, and graduate school, on behalf of the BSNC Board of Directors and staff. We are all very proud of your accomplishments and wish you well in your future endeavors.

We hope everyone has a fruitful, safe and enjoyable Summer!

HISTORICAL SPOTLIGHT: THE CARIBOU ARE BACK!

It was 20 years ago, during the summer of 1996, that caribou once again moved into the central area of the Seward Peninsula in large numbers. This extension of the Western Arctic Caribou Herd (WACH) is now resident on the Peninsula, with calves being born annually in the inland regions. Caribou had been mostly absent since their disappearance during the middle decades of the 1800's. During those early years the Seward Peninsula herd was so large that many were taken on an annual basis at large drive sites located throughout the Seward Peninsula. It is not known with any certainty what caused the demise of the Seward Peninsula herd, but it was most likely a combination of the naturally occurring cycle of large herd populations, changes in environment or available browse, and higher calf mortality due to predators. Firearms were introduced about the same time as the herd was dwindling, but an earlier theory that firearms were the sole cause of the decline is no longer accepted. Since 1996, Reindeer herders have lost animals as they wander off with the caribou, but as Jim Dau wrote in 2000, "Aside from reindeer herders, most residents of the Seward Peninsula are delighted to have virtually unlimited opportunity to harvest caribou for sport and subsistence." While the presence of caribou is very beneficial for our residents, the Western Arctic Herd numbers have declined rapidly in recent years. New regulations were recently introduced by the Federal Subsistence Committee for Federal lands within Game Management Unit 23 (north of Seward Peninsula). Please be aware of these changes and harvest your subsistence resources responsibly.

BSNC DESCENDANT SELECTED AS 2016 FIRST LADY'S VOLUNTEER OF THE YEAR AWARDEE

NICK HANSON OF UNALAKLEET RECOGNIZED

Alaska's First Lady Donna Walker announced BSNC descendant Nick Hanson of Unalakleet as a recipient of the 2016 First Lady's Volunteer of the Year Award. Hanson was chosen for his dedication to setting a good example and his active involvement with his community's youth. More than 90 Alaskans from around the state were nominated for the awards. Recipients were carefully chosen by the First Lady and members of the selection committee. Winners were honored during a luncheon at the Governor's Mansion on May 4.

Hanson was also recognized as a 2015 BSNC Young Providers Awardee. Hanson, who competed on NBC's "American Ninja Warrior," helps build a better community by working as a teacher's aide, coaching youth sports in Unalakleet, working with a suicide prevention program, and traveling to other rural communities as a motivational speaker. His efforts to improve the health and well-being of youth also led Nick to organize a 5K fun run to encourage people to keep active and physically fit, no matter their age. Hanson embraces traditional activities and relishes the role as a mentor of young people.
